Abstract

An organizational network analysis can provide a visualization of the social networks within an organization and provides the ability to benefit from the organization's social capital. OHDSI has established an international network of researchers and observational health databases. Yet, we have never formally conducted a network analyses to map out our patterns of collaboration. Prior this year's symposium, we issued a survey the OHDSI collaborator network to capture information on collaboration patterns. The purpose of this system demonstration is to explore the findings from this network analysis and promote discussion on the future of OHDSI collaborations globally.
