Leveraging the OHDSI vocabulary to characterize the COVID-19 epidemic using Twitter data and NLP

In this work we have shown that leveraging the OHDSI vocabulary for NLP tasks on social media data adds great value when looking into health informatics topics. We also show that people share a considerable amount of health data on Twitter, making it a valuable resource for health research.